SEVENTEENTH YEAR

GETTYSBURG, PA., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31st, 1918.

PRICE TWO CENTS

MRS. BUSHMAN'S DAUGHTER DEAD

Is Victim of Influenza while with Husband at Deming, New Mexico, Camp.

WILL BRING BODY HOME

Hoped to be Able to Come to Father's Funeral but Illness Made that Impossible.

Mrs. George J. Bushman on Wednesday evening received a telegram telling that her daughter, Margaret, had died in Deming, New Mexico, from pneumonia, following influenza. A message was immediately dispatched asking that the body be brought here. The daughter was the wife of First Sergeant Charles R. Holder, now stationed at Camp Cody, near Deming. Her age was 22 years.

When Mr. Bushman met his tragic death on the night of October 16th, his daughter was notified and at first thought she could come for the funeral. She was ill, however, and had to give up this idea. Not wanting to worry her mother at the time she was crushed by the sudden death of Mr. Bushman, Mrs. Holder did not tell of her own serious illness, so that the news received Wednesday night came as a specially crushing blow.

Mary Margaret Bushman was the only daughter. She was married on January 25th last at York, by Rev. C. H. Stein. Her husband was stationed here last summer with the 61st Infantry and came back from Camp Greene for the wedding. Later he went across with his regiment and, after seeing active service, was detailed for instruction work in the United States. Sergeant and Mrs. Holder visited at the Bushman home last month, and from here they went to Deming.

Sergeant Holder's home is in Huntsville, Alabama. He survives with the mother, Mrs. Bushman; and one brother, Sergeant Clarence Bushman, in the recruiting office at Fort Slocum, N. Y.

The body will be brought home, according to Mrs. Bushman's instructions, but the time of its arrival here is not indicated.

MRS. EPHRAIM M. YOUNT

Mrs. E. M. Yount, wife of Ephraim M. Yount, aged 70 years, died at Herndon, Virginia, on Wednesday. Before her marriage, Mrs. Yount was Laura R. Musselman, daughter of the late Major John Musselman, of near Fairfield.

MRS. WILLIAM GILES

Mrs. William Giles died at her home in Boiling Springs Monday evening at 9:00 o'clock, from pneumonia. She leaves her husband and one son, Frank Giles, with the American Expeditionary Forces in France; also one brother, Frank Shade, of Gettysburg.

Funeral this morning in Boiling Springs.

FUNERAL

The funeral of Miss Joanna Rider, who died at her home in Littlestown on Wednesday morning, will be held on Monday morning at nine o'clock, Rev. Fr. Crotty and Rev. Fr. O'Callaghan officiating. Interment will be made in the Catholic cemetery, at Littlestown.

FUNERAL

The funeral of George S. Weikert will be held Saturday afternoon at two o'clock from the residence on York street. Interment in Evergreen cemetery.

PIECE OF PLANE

Soldier Entertained at Orrtanna Home Last Year.

L. M. Wetzel, of Orrtanna, has received a letter from Harry M. Taylor, 7th Machine Gun Battalion, Somewhere in France, in which he enclosed a piece of a German airplane. He said he might have sent the whole plane except for "strict military regulations". The soldier was here with the troops during the summer of 1917 and was frequently entertained at the Wetzel home.

CASUALTIES NOW STRIKING HOME

One Gettysburg Man is Struck. Two Former College Boys among Wounded.

ONE IS AN ARMY CAPTAIN

Rare Courage Shown by Former College and Seminary Student when he was Laid Low.

Sergeant Clarence H. Wilson, of Gettysburg, appears in to-day's official casualty list among those slightly wounded in action.

Sergeant Wilson is a son-in-law of Mrs. Elise Braunreuter, of Baltimore street. His home is in Gettysburg with the Seventh Infantry. His wife before her marriage was Miss Clara Braunreuter. She received official notification of her husband being wounded about one week ago.

On Wednesday two letters came from him, stating that he was under treatment in an American army hospital in France, and he is now believed to be recovering from his wounds.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Raffensperger, of Arendtsville, have received word from their son, Sergeant W. Arnold Raffensperger, of Company F, 316th Infantry, that he has been wounded and is in a base hospital. It will be remembered that Sergeant Raffensperger was a clerk in the Gettysburg post office last summer for several months.

First Lieutenant Edgar A. Eyer, a graduate of Gettysburg College and a former student at the Seminary, has been wounded in action. The courage he showed when he was brought down by a Hun missile is told in a letter from First Lieutenant Trundle, who was a close friend of Eyer's. Both are in the 313th Regiment, 79th Division. Lieutenant Trundle says: "Eyer was wounded several weeks ago and I tried to find him on the field, but he had been sent to the hospital and as far as I now know he is recovering. When they picked him up on the field he was singing 'There's a Long, Long Trail'. Hope to see him with us again soon, although I don't know how serious his wound was. He has been the same Eddie since in the army that he was before and I have faith that he will soon come through O. K."

Word has just reached here that First Lieutenant Daniel Keller, 23 years of age, son of William H. Keller, First Deputy Attorney General of Pennsylvania, has been killed in action on the French front. Lieutenant Keller was attached to the Three Hundred and Sixteenth Pennsylvania Infantry, 79th Division, and was married in Philadelphia just before embarkation for France. He lived in Lancaster.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Froehlich, of Harrisburg, have received a letter from their son, Captain Samuel Sloane Froehlich, telling them that he is now a convalescent in a hospital somewhere in France.

"I guess you didn't know I was wounded," writes Froehlich, "but here I am in the hospital after the fuss."

How serious the wounds are or when they were received, his parents have not been able to ascertain. Captain Froehlich is well known here. When he enlisted he was a member of the junior class at Gettysburg College, where he was prominent in the activities of military, athletic, and other branches of college work.

He sailed for France March 30, of this year.

Captain Walter W. Van Baman, Company M, 315th Infantry, a well known attorney-at-law of York, has recently been confined to a hospital "over there" as a result of shell shock sustained in action. This information was conveyed in a letter to his sister, Miss Katharine Van Baman.

It was during an engagement sometime prior to October 8, last, the date of the letter, that Captain Van Baman had gone "over the top" when a shell burst close to his side. He was rendered unconscious and never awoke until several hours later, after he had been taken to a hospital. According to the letter the officer expected to be able to rejoin his command within two or three weeks, and it is possible that he was in the thick of the fighting that the American boys have been engaged in only quite recently.

DIED IN FRANCE

Another Adams County Boy Gives up his Life.

Elmer H. Miller, of Bendersville Station, has received word of the death in France from pneumonia of Walter S. Bream. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Leander Bream, formerly of Huntingdon township, who died when he was quite young. Mr. Miller reared him and he lived at Bendersville Station until about two years ago when he went to Ohio and accepted employment with an automobile firm.

Private Bream's death occurred shortly after his arrival in France. He was aged 20 years, 8 months, and 2 days. He enlisted on June 27, 1918, at Columbus, Ohio, in the artillery and from there was sent to Fort Monroe, Virginia, and then to France. A letter from his captain to Mr. Miller says:

"Private Bream has been a member of the battery since July 8th, 1918, and was a faithful and earnest soldier. He seemed to enjoy the army life and was cheerful even on the crowded transport up to the day of his illness."

"He was a valuable soldier, one whose loss is keenly felt by his officers and comrades. He took a heavy cold October 5th, while on transport to France. He was taken from the transport by ambulance to a hospital. Pneumonia developed and he died at 2:55 a. m., Sunday, October 13."

JOKE MAY BE TURNED

Cottages Broken into along Conewago now under Guard.

Quite a number of petty robberies occur from time to time at the cottages of the campers along Big Conewago. The latest place entered was the home of the Hanover Country Club, near Dicks' farm. Entrance was gained by forcing a door and the thieves broke open a number of lockers belonging to members. Some small articles are missing.

These continued raids prove very annoying, and the campers are determined to break up the practice.

Squirrel hunters have again invaded the Waldheim woods, in spite of the fact that notices prohibiting gunning on the property have been posted. The woods is now being watched and further offenders will be severely dealt with and punished in the future if this practice continues. The cottagers wish to protect the squirrels as the little animals are nice to have about in the woods during the summer.

DOUBLE WEDDING

Adams County Man was One of the Bridegrooms.

A double wedding took place Saturday afternoon in Westminster, when Miss Beulah F. Gonker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Gonker, Middleburg, and Francis Laugerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Laugerman, Bittinger's Station, and Miss Beulah Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Baker, Hanover, and Robert L. Hebebride, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hebebride, Hanover, were married. The ceremony was performed at the Methodist parsonage by Rev. Edwin T. Mowbray.

Mr. and Mrs. Laugerman will reside at the home of the bride's parents at Middleburg, for the present, while Mr. and Mrs. Hebebride will make their home with the bridegroom's parents.

ADAMS-SANDERS

Honeymoon is being Spent at Washington and Norfolk.

Miss Mary Thelma Sanders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Sanders, of near Gettysburg, and John Earl Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Adams, of Emmitsburg, were married at a nuptial mass in St. Francis Xavier Church at seven o'clock Wednesday morning by Rev. W. F. Boyle. The bride wore a blue traveling suit with hat to match, and was attended by Miss Bernadette Bowling. The bridegroom's best man was his brother, Maurice Adams.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams left on a wedding trip to Washington, D. C., and Norfolk, Va.

The draft calls suspended in October because of the influenza epidemic have been renewed in sections where the epidemic has moderated, and entrainment of all men under the October call probably will be completed before the November men will be started to cantonments.

DIRECT NEWS OF 316TH REGIMENT

Got Baptism of Fire for Six Days in one of Recent Allied Drives.

SOLDIER WRITES LETTER

Adams County Boys within Three Hour Motor Trip of Germain Soil, it Tells.

After six days of heavy fighting, the 316th Infantry was sent back for a rest, according to a letter just received from Raymond Wagner, of Hanover, a member of the command in which so many Adams County boys are fighting. He says:

"No doubt you people at home were more or less worried over me when you didn't hear from me quite so regularly during the past month, but nevertheless, I did write you a few times under some rather trying conditions. At present we are located in billets, arriving in this town just yesterday. This is our resting period but don't know how long we will stay here."

"I suppose you people at home were all informed through the newspaper columns that the Seventy Ninth Division participated in one of the recent Allied drives. Our regiment was in the thick of things and were on the front line for six days. One never realizes the horror of war until he has been to the front. Thank God I have emerged sound and well. I never sought the help of God through prayer so earnestly in my life as I did on that battlefield. These and your prayers back in the states I am sure played an important part in my deliverance."

"Why all this despondency when I am feeling fine and have a lot to be thankful for? As soon as I finish this letter I'm going to mass in the village church. We now have a Catholic chaplain attached to our regiment as well as the former Protestant one. Three masses this morning, and I understand the two previous ones have been well attended. Before we went into battle our priest said mass for the boys every morning."

"I saw some of the boys from John's outfit the other day, and was told that he had been sent back to the hospital, not wounded, but his arches, which had been weak for a long time fell down, and caused him not a little discomfort. No doubt, he will now be transferred to an organization where he won't have to do so much walking."

"We are now so close to the German border that if you had an automobile here you could run us over in about three hours. Everybody now is of the belief that the war will end before the first of the year. Let us hope they know what they are talking about."

TAFT AND ROOSEVELT

Issue Combined Answer to Wilson's Political Plea.

(By Telegraph)

New York, Oct. 31.—Urging the election of a Republican Congress, Ex-Presidents Taft and Roosevelt today issued a joint reply to Wilson's plea for a Democratic House of Representatives.

The reply laid stress on the present peace agitation saying, "The President has indicated a willingness to make a peace by negotiation. He has not demanded what he could have asked in three lines and what the American people want, the unconditional surrender of Germany."

Roosevelt issued a separate statement in which he said that "The war is being waged to put a stop to one-man control," and in which he said that the President's fourteen terms were general and vague, and not likely to produce a real peace.

TURKEY OUT OF THE WORLD WAR

Armistice Completed this Morning. Many Troops are Surrendered to British.

DARDANELLES NOW OPEN

Reported that Austrian Commander is Begging General Diaz for Armistice at once.

(By Cable)
London, Oct. 31, 1 p. m.—British representatives concluded an armistice with Turkey at noon to-day, it is officially stated here this afternoon.

The terms are declared to include free passage of the Dardanelles, and to make it impossible under any circumstances for Turkey to resume hostilities.

The terms amount to unconditional surrender in every particular, and Turkey is definitely out of the war.

London, Oct. 31, 1:10 p. m.—The Dardanelles are reported to have been opened to the British at 6:30 this morning.

London, Oct. 31, 3:30 p. m.—The Turkish army in the Tigris region of Mesopotamia has surrendered. This included one entire division and the best part of two others.

London, Oct. 31, 3:50 p. m.—The Austrian commander in chief on the Italian front is authoritatively reported to have asked General Diaz, in command of the Allied forces, in that part of the war theatre, for an armistice. The Austrian forces are retreating in disorder and the retreat is rapidly approaching a rout. The appeal for an armistice has been forwarded to the Allied conference at Versailles.

London, Oct. 31.—Dispatches from Vienna say that the War Office has issued a statement declaring that "in view of this country's often expressed resolve to bring about an armistice and peace, all the Italian territory now occupied by Austrian troops will be evacuated."

This may also mean the evacuation of Belgrade, capital of Serbia, on the southern bank of the Danube.

London, Oct. 31.—The Allied advance east of the Piave continues without check, the War Office announced to-day. The Italians have occupied the railway town of Oderzo. British troops have entered Asiago, the important town which forms the chief bastion of the mountain region of the Italian front, it was officially announced to-day.

The advance which has widened the front by more than eight miles additional is continuing rapidly.

The Italians have taken the supply base of Vittorio.

Zurich, Oct. 31.—Czecho-Slavic troops have cut the railways from Berlin to Vienna at Oderberg and Bodenbach.

With the Italian Army in the field, Oct. 31.—General Treat's Ohio troops have maintained contact with the Austrians east of the Piave.

Rome, Oct. 31.—The total number of Austrian prisoners is 40,000.

Rome, Oct. 31.—Italian troops have entered Sicile, the War Office announced to-day. Thousands of additional prisoners were taken.

(By Telegraph)

Washington, Oct. 31.—Increasing artillery activity on the American front is reported in General Pershing's communique for Wednesday which tells that American airmen accounted for twenty one enemy planes on that day.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Confirmation of the reported dispatching of General Foch's armistice terms to Berlin was lacking to-day at both the War and State Departments. The State Department, especially, was reticent about discussing the work of the council of Versailles.

It is hinted that the armistice terms may not necessarily be submitted to Germany through this country but instead may go through the military advisers.

PLAN PROGRAM OF ARMISTICE

Difference in Views of Representatives of Allied Nations being Fixed.

ANOTHER GERMAN LETTER

Entire Agreement is in Immediate Prospect. Conditions which President Wilson Favors.

Washington, Oct. 31.—The general opinion among officials and diplomats here is that the German proposal for an armistice and peace, while having its origin in a plan to gain time for strengthening the army and restoring its shattered morale, has now gone beyond the control of the military party and that the German people are the force which is driving the German government to make for ending the war.

Paris, Oct. 31.—The heads of the Allied governments and Colonel E. M. House, special representative of the United States government, with the military and naval advisers of the respective countries, continued their informal meetings.

Differences of views, natural to the immensity of the interests involved, have arisen, but under friendly examination they have largely disappeared.

Although some points in President Wilson's declarations may require more complete definition an entire agreement is in immediate prospect. The Supreme War Council will not meet formally until this full understanding has been reached.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Another note from the German Government explanatory of the changes that have been made or are projected in German constitution and reform of government was received yesterday through the Swiss legation, but the State Department did not make it public. This note was understood to be supplementary to the preceding German communication saying to the President that he must have knowledge of the efforts that have been made to democratize Germany.

The report that Count Andrássy, the new Austrian premier, is about to sue directly to Italy for peace on the ground that Italy is Austria's "sole antagonist," is generally regarded as confirmatory of this understanding of the hopeless situation in the Dual Empire. It was pointed out that since Italy solemnly engaged with the other Entente Powers not to make a separate peace, if Austria carries out this plan it naturally would be referred by Italy to the Supreme War Council.

Col. E. M. House, who is in Paris as the special representative of the American government to the European governments, has been making long reports to Washington, but it is believed these do not relate to the proceedings of the War Council, but rather embody the individual views he has gathered from many private conferences with the Entente premiers, cabinet officers and military and naval officers in attendance upon the council.

There has been much speculation in official circles as to the probable features of the armistice which will be offered to the Central Powers, but it is admitted that there is no definite knowledge on the subject. One comparatively new proposition relates to the guarantees to be exacted from Germany for the repayment of the tremendous financial losses suffered by the populations of those portions of Belgium and France occupied by the German troops. This is understood to contemplate the possession by the Entente Powers of a number of important industrial cities in the Rhine country and of the products of the mines and the soils therein until compensation has been made.

REPUBLICANS BLOCK RECESS

Prevented Adjournment of Congress Over Election.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Plans for an adjournment of Congress until after election appeared last night to have been blocked by partisan conflict in the Senate.

Less than a quorum of the Senate was in Washington last night and Republican leaders said they would exercise their power to prevent the proposed recess in order that the Senate may discuss any developments in the peace negotiations.

Democratic leaders were understood to be prepared to forestall another outbreak of partisan debate by making a point of no quorum. It was conceded by Republican members that the Democratic plans could be carried out, thus forcing an adjournment of the Senate from day to day.

THE HOG ISLAND REPORT

Will Not Be Made Public for Several Weeks.

Washington, Oct. 31.—The Department of Justice report on the Hog Island shipbuilding plant probably will not be made public for several weeks. Although the report was completed and submitted to the President six weeks ago, certain figures showing the cost of constructing the plant now are being revised at the instance of the Shipping Board, which has definite figures to substitute for those which were partly estimates used in the original report.

Accountants of the Department of Justice and the Shipping Board are now at work on these revisions.

IN THE THICK OF THE FIGHT

American Artillery Participated in Capture of St. Etienne.

New York, Oct. 31.—The artillery attached to the Second American Division, which bore the brunt of the recent severe fighting in the Champagne and captured St. Etienne, consisted of the 15th, 17th and 19th regiments. A cable dispatch dated October 9, said the 16th Regiment, instead of the 17th, was serving in this division.

TO DEMOBILIZE TURKISH FORCES

Allied Fleet Invited to Dardanelles. Troops to Supervise the Work.

Amsterdam, Oct. 31.—According to a Constantinople dispatch reports are current that Turkey under the peace negotiations has invited the Allied fleet to enter the Dardanelles. Troops are not to be landed, it is said, with the exception of a small detachment to supervise the demobilization of the Ottoman army.

The Constantinople newspaper, Idman, on Sunday printed a statement from a "competent source," that Turkey had commenced official peace negotiations with the Entente, adding that delegates already had left the Turkish capital. In other quarters in Constantinople, however, it is declared the negotiations are unofficial.

Paris, Oct. 31.—A dispatch from Athens to the Matin says the "sole remaining Turkish army," has been concentrated at Bulair, a town at the neck of the Gallipoli peninsula. The Tchatalja positions are being prepared as the second line of defense for Constantinople.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Turkish troops have begun the evacuation of Tabriz, Persia, according to advices reaching the State Department. The Turks are menaced by the British forces in Macedonia in their advance northward.

PLANE HIT AT 5,000 FEET

But American Lads Made Escape to Holland.

Amsterdam, Oct. 31.—Lieut. Frank Neims, of Philadelphia, and Lieut. John Frederick Gibbs, of New York, who were interned at The Hague, after making a forced landing near Schoondyke, in Dutch Flanders, on Sunday afternoon, were flying in an American naval bombing biplane of the latest type. The Americans had started from Calais and were dropping bombs on the German lines in Flanders when their machine was struck by bursting shrapnel at a height of 5,000 feet.

Pieces of shell hit the propeller and also made holes in the benzine tank. The biplane landed safely and neither occupant was hurt.

FIRE IN CHEMICAL PLANT

Blaze Followed by Explosions at Kingsport, Tenn.

Bristol, Va.-Tenn., Oct. 31.—Fire followed by a few explosions of minor character destroyed the chloride distilling building at the $3,000,000 government chemical plant at Kingsport last night, but so far as was reported, there was no loss of life. The damage was estimated at more than $100,000.

The origin of the blaze has not been determined, according to the rather meager reports received here. First accounts said a number of persons had been injured by the explosions, but this later was denied.

PRISONERS NOW NUMBER 33,000

Great Drive of Allies in Italy Holds Center of Interest in War.

OHIO REGIMENT IS THERE

Austrians Fighting Hard, with Some Success, in Mountain Country. Rout on Left.

London, Oct. 31.—Over a front of some 60 miles, from the Brenta River in Northern Italy to the vicinity of the Adriatic Sea, the Austro-Hungarians are being violently attacked by Italian, British, French and American troops. The American unit is the 332nd Infantry composed of Ohio troops.

In the mountain region the enemy is resisting desperately and holding his ground fairly well. But east of the Piave River he is in flight across the plains of Treviso, shaping his course over the same territory through which he drove the Italians a year ago and reached the eastern edge of the Plains of Venetia.

Already numerous towns have been liberated, 33,000 prisoners have been taken and large numbers of guns and machine guns and huge quantities of stores have fallen into the hands of the Allied troops. Far behind the lines Allied aviators are heavily bombing enemy columns in dense masses, which are in retreat over the badly congested roads leading eastward toward the Austrian frontier.

Judging the situation from the rapid advance the Allies are making it would appear that the entire enemy front has been broken east of the Piave, and that with the cavalry operating far in advance of the foot troops the enemy forces will be unable to reform their battle line until the Austrian border is reached. It is not unlikely that many of the Austro-Hungarians are doomed to capture or extermination by the Allies.

On The West Front

On the western front in France and Belgium there has been a marked diminution in the intensity of the infantry activity. Along the British line there have been only patrol encounters and reciprocal bombardments. The French, however, are engaged in another attack on a front of about seven and a half miles between St. Quentin-le-Petit and Herpy, in the general direction of the enemy's communication lines running eastward from the old St. Quentin and Laon sectors, and also with the purpose of driving a wedge into this part of the southern battle line and thereby compel the enemy to readjust his front through Champagne to the Meuse.

Around Grand Pre, north of the Argonne forest, the Americans have materially bettered their positions in attacks against the Germans. The Bellejeunesse farm, which for several days has been in No Man's Land, now is virtually all held by the Americans. East of the Meuse there also has been considerable fighting, but it has resulted in no great change in positions.

The big American guns are continuing to heavily shell German positions far behind the lines and bombing planes also are intensively active against troop concentration points. In air fighting the Americans Wednesday sent 21 German aviators crashing to the ground. Two of the American fliers are missing.

In The East In both Serbia and Mesopotamia the Allied troops are still harassing the enemy. Serbian cavalry has arrived at the Danube a short distance southeast of Belgrade. In Mesopotamia the British advance has proceeded 150 miles up the Tigris River from Bagdad.

POLISH FLAG RAISED

Unfurled From Staff on Top of the New York City Hall.

New York, Oct. 31.—The Polish flag, with its red field and white spread-eagle, was unfurled yesterday from a flagstaff on the roof of the City Hall. The flag was raised in honor of ten veterans who arrived at an Atlantic port on Tuesday.

The Polish veterans will remain in this country several weeks, to stimulate the movement to raise a Polish army in the United States. The veterans, each of whom has been wounded and decorated with the Croix de Guerre, are under the command of Lieut. John Chodko, who has been wounded twenty three times.

NECKLACE WORTH $125,000

British Colonel Charged With Theft of Pearls.

New Orleans, Oct. 31.—B. G. Collins, a former colonel in the British army, wanted in Bombay, India, for the alleged theft of a pearl necklace worth approximately $125,000, was Wednesday ordered turned over to the British authorities.

Collins was arrested here about six months ago. It is said he will be taken to Bombay for trial.

HUGHES REPORT ON AIRCRAFT

Execution of Government's Plans might have been Much Better if Claims.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Government plans for turning out quantities of airplanes and results achieved through co-operation of manufacturers are generally commended in the report of Charles E. Hughes in the aircraft investigation to be sent to President Wilson today by Attorney General Gregory and made public. A number of specific acts and plans involved in the big task of preparing the nation for warfare in the air are declared subject to criticism, but in the light of later developments some of these are held to be excusable.

Officials who have been in touch with the investigation emphasized that this is not to be interpreted as meaning that blanket approval of the way in which the program has been carried out is given. On the other hand, they said, plenty of evidence of inefficiency in manufacturing plants and waste of money and time is presented, indicating that the execution of the government's plans might have been much better, on the part of both government agencies and contractors for airplanes.

Although President Wilson has not yet seen the report, he has been told the substance of its findings.

MOTOR SHIP LOST OFF CUBA

Vessel Was Carrying Ore to Norfolk. On Third Voyage.

Philadelphia, Oct. 31.—The American Manganese Manufacturing Company, this city, has received word that its ship, Ethel, was lost off Cuba while on its third voyage. The crew landed safely. The company has no information as to the cause of the sinking.

The Ethel was one of a fleet of five motor-equipped wooden vessels recently built in Oregon.

Silvery Bark of the Yellow Birch.

The bark of the yellow birch can be compared with nothing else. The tree is unique among trees. The yellow birch, often better called the silvery birch, has a bark more tinsel-like than that of any other tree. It seems to have been made for campers to admire, or perhaps, in an emergency, to use to kindle the camp fire. Says Edward F. Bigelow in Boys' Life. But do not allow the appreciation of the useful to overcome your appreciation of the beautiful. It is true that the bark may thus be used for kindling and it is also probably true that the removal of the loose bark does not injure the tree, but such removal injures the beauty of the tree, as you then deprive it of its chief characteristic. The manner in which the bark breaks on the main trunk, expands and rolls back in ribbonlike curls and strips, which long remain attached and rustle in every passing breeze, could not fail to elicit the admiration of every lover of the forest.

It is noticeable that on old trunks the character of the bark is different as there it is roughened by irregular platelike scales.

In Vaudeville. Draft men coming to Camp Kearny recently for training decorated the railroad cars in which they traveled with all sorts of mottoes and inscriptions.

When they got there they were required to wash them off. However, one car got away from camp in some unexplained fashion, while these words still adorned its sides.
"This is the bunch that's going to make the Kaiser whistle the 'Star Spangled Banner.'"

A thorough physical examination at the beginning of school last fall showed the condition of heart, lungs, posture, feet, etc. A similar examination was made last spring.

AGAINST WIDOWS MARRYING

German Doctor Urges a New Law to Give Single Women a Chance.

Amsterdam, Holland.—Enactment of a law in Germany to prevent widows from remarrying so as to leave the few available men for single women is urged in a letter to the Tag by a Munich doctor, Hans von Hertig. He points out that the widows, through remarrying after the war, would have a detrimental effect on the birth rate, as most of them are mothers already.
"On December 1, 1910," he writes, "there were in Germany about 300,000 widows between the ages of eighteen and forty-five. At a very modest estimate there are now 300,000."

ASTRIDE PLANE UPSIDE DOWN; RIDES TO EARTH

London.—A British airman, while flying at a height of 1,600 feet, had the tail of his machine shot off by a direct hit from a shell. The machine turned upside down and the pilot was thrown from his seat, but he managed to clamber onto the bottom of the fuselage, on which he remained astride.

Although the machine was out of control, he managed, by moving forward and backward, to balance it and glide steadily downward. Under a strong anti-aircraft fire he crossed the German lines successfully a few hundred feet from the ground. His machine came down with a crash and he received some injuries, but will recover.

"ANZAC" FROGS CLIMB POLES

Australian Variety Declared to Be Big Nuisance to Telegraph Company.

Sydney, N. S. W.—One of the great enemies of the overland telegraph line in Central Australia is the common green frog. In order to save the insulators from being broken by the lightning they are provided with wire "droppers" leading round them at a little distance to conduct onto the iron pole in case of need.

The frogs climb the poles and find the insulators cool and pleasant to their bodies, and fancy that the "dropper" is put there to furnish them with a back seat.

After a nap they rawn and stretch out a leg until it touches the pole—result, sudden death to the frog, and as the body continues to conduct the current to earth there is a paragraph in the papers to the effect that "in consequence of an interruption to the lines probably caused by a cyclonic disturbance in the interior, we are unable to present our readers with the usual cables from England."

TOUCHED BY SERVICE FLAG

Youngster on Brink of Disgrace Resolved to Be Worthy of Emblem Displayed in His Honor.

"Why the service flag?" is an old question, but from one of our middle West towns comes a new answer. A wealthy family in an Indiana town had a son, who had never done anything to reflect honor on his family—a family which was proud of its famous ancestry. He didn't enlist when this war broke out, and then tried to evade the draft, but was compelled to go in a recent call. He entered a training camp a few miles from his home town.

Rules and a regular life were hard for him. Smoldering under a well-deserved reproof, he one night decided to desert. He slipped away from the camp and, under cover of darkness, made his way to his home in order to get his civilian clothes and better effect his escape.

Just as he was ready to scale the front veranda of his home he noticed the service flag in one of the house's great front windows. There it was—in the most conspicuous place the house afforded—a great silk flag with its one blue star.

"It's for me," the boy thought.

Through his mind passed the memory of his life—a failure in winning any of the honors his family had wanted for him. No college diploma, not even a high school one, had he received—nothing except this one star in this flag had he ever let his people claim as his contribution to the family's famous name.

He turned back toward the sidewalk. "They'll get to keep that honor," he told himself. "I'll make it bigger, too," and he slipped back to camp, elated to find that his absence had not been discovered.

Disdaint Western Pliny.

In reply to an inquiry from an American firm as to the demand here for lace goods and embroideries, it can be stated, reports the American consul at Yokohama, that as the Japanese women cling very tenaciously to their style of dress and as no use is made of lace or embroideries either in their dress or home furnishings, it is improbable that any considerable market can be developed in Japan for American-made lace goods or embroideries. The demand would be limited to the foreign residents here, who now number about 6,000, exclusive of Chinese, and to such goods as are of no being manufactured in Japan.

WHO CAN RISE TO OCCASION?

Name of Man Capable of Formulating "Umbrella Regulations" Will Live in History.

With the passing of each rainy day it becomes increasingly strange that no benefactor of the race has been prodded, gouged or spattered into preparing a "Manual of Umbrellas." People have been carrying some sort of protection against the rain ever since anybody can remember, yet the only thing they have really learned to do well is to lose umbrellas. No two persons, not even lovers, can walk under one umbrella without getting wet, and raincoats probably were first devised by a man who tried to carry an umbrella over his wife's hat. What excuse is there for the person who goes through a crowded street holding an umbrella before him in a charge-bayonets fashion? An apology does not exactly meet the requirements after the tip of an umbrella rib has been thrust into some one's eye. Folded, the umbrella is just as dangerous, when some one comes plunging along the sidewalk holding the umbrella at an angle of about 45 degrees ahead of him, tripping every one but himself. Then there is the person who tucks the handle under the arm, so that an innocent person may become speared on the sharp end which sticks out like a 60-foot telephone pole on a 15-foot truck. Furthermore, wet umbrellas never were intended as partitions between seats, even at a motion-picture theater. There is no desire to distract the best brains of the country from consideration of war problems, but some sort of umbrella regulations are needed.

Boring Pole Holes.

The tiresome and time consuming work of digging holes for telegraph and electric service poles is now at an end, says Scientific American. At least, there has been evolved a gasoline driven earth-boring machine which makes an average boring time per hole of one and one-half to two minutes. The equipment is mounted on a horse drawn truck and is operated by two men. In ordinary soil it maintains an average of 100 holes per day, each measuring five feet deep by 24 inches in diameter. The equipment consists of a truck, which carries a gasoline engine, driving mechanism and a huge auger which is slowly rotated and fed downward. The augers are furnished in sizes from 2 to 24 inches.

POSTPONE FUNERAL

Helen I. Werner, infant daughter of Frank F. and Annie E. Werner, aged three years, died at the parents' residence, in York, Tuesday morning at 11:40 o'clock. While the funeral arrangements were being made, in fact had been announced to take place on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, the father, who with other members was ill, became worse and his death occurred shortly after 1 o'clock Wednesday morning. The child's funeral has been postponed and it is likely that the two will be buried at the same time.

GET SOLDIER WITH BOGUS PASS

Private George W. Mundis, aged 21, tried to work a new gag when, belonging to Camp Sevier, S. C., and wanting a long visit in York, he framed up a pass for himself, stating that he belonged to Camp Wadsworth, and went to York. The bogus pass stated that he was granted leave of absence from October 21 to November 29 and that it was given because of the sickness of his wife. The pass was not very well constructed and Patrolman Rauhauser arrested him for absence without leave, and the military authorities at Camp Sevier were notified. A telegram was received in return asking the police to hold Mundis awaiting the arrival of a guard. On June 2 last, Mundis was arrested in York as a deserter by Special Officers Keech and Platts.

FIRE CAUSES LOSS OF $1,600

Fire causing damage to the amount of about $1,600 occurred early Wednesday morning at the property of C. J. Bange, tenanted by Herman Feeser and family, Hanover.

The fire was discovered by persons passing by on the street about 8 o'clock in the morning. Word was sent to the Eagle Fire Company, No. 2, the members of which responded promptly. The blaze was found to be on the attic and is thought to have started on the steps. How the fire started is a mystery as there has been no fire in the house for several days and no person has been on the attic for a week.

Mrs. Sarah Klinedinst, mother of Mrs. Feeser, who resides with her daughter, had a lot of furniture stored on the attic, which was a total loss. The loss to the property is estimated at $700. To the Feeser furniture, the damage amounted to $500 and to Mrs. Klinedinst's furniture, about $400.

The loss to the property is covered by insurance, while the Feeser furniture is partly covered. The Klinedinst furniture, however, was not insured.

REPORTED KILLED

Sergeant Roy Porter, who is a member of the machine gun company of the 16th regiment, in writing to his sister, in Chambersburg, under date of October 13, states that he is recovering from wounds received in action. Sergeant Porter in his letter states that Private Edgar Shoemaker of his company was killed in action. Bare mention is made of this, but it is the first intimation received there that Private Shoemaker has made the supreme sacrifice. Private Shoemaker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Shoemaker, of Chambersburg, have received no news from the war department that their son is a casualty. Usually the war department's telegram comes before news is received by letter, but in view of the increasing size of the casualty list, due to the Marne fighting, it may be that Sergeant Porter's letter has got ahead of the cable casualty list. Private Shoemaker went with the first draftees and was a well known amateur base ball player and an electrician.

CUMBERLAND CO.

HUNTERS FIND BODY

Hanging from a tree in the mountains below Mount Pleasant, York county, the body of William Porter, aged 63, of Mechanicsburg, who disappeared from his home August 8, was found Tuesday afternoon by Shaffer Williams and Lloyd Stoner, of Shepherdstown. The men were on a hunting trip at the time.

They immediately notified Chief of Police Edward S. Cocklin and the body was taken to the undertaking parlors of S. Harper Myers, Mechanicsburg.

Exposed to the weather for almost three months, the body could only be identified by the clothing, a knife and a razor which were found in the pockets, and a pocketbook. That Mr. Porter wandered away from home during the hot weather in August and committed suicide by hanging himself, using a long grape vine to make a noose, was the opinion expressed by Dr. J. H. Deardorff, coroner of Cumberland county.

Mr. Porter was well known in that vicinity. For years he had been farming at Bowmansdale, but about a month before his disappearance he removed to his home in Mechanicsburg with his family. After he left home searching parties of borough police, residents and detectives failed to locate him and a number of reports that he had been seen were investigated without any definite results.

Calsson Driver From Indiana Tells of His Experience Under German Fire.

Rushville, Ind.—Some of the experiences of a caisson driver while under fire are described in a letter received here from Private Raymond B. Colestock of Battery A, One Hundred and Fiftieth field artillery. The letter, written by him to his parents, follows in part:

"On Monday morning we got a little taste of real war and German shell-fire, and shortly before noon we caisson drivers got our baptism of fire. We had to take a load of shells up to the guns and shells were falling all around the road we had to travel on. We went on the run, one caisson at a time, and all got there, although the shells hit uncomfortably close. I got up to the guns all right and started back. Just as I got up on a small raised shell hit about fifteen feet off the road, passing over the back of my caisson. The force of it nearly threw me out of the saddle and I got hit with a chunk of dirt, but was not hurt, but pieces of steel whizzed rather wickedly past my ears.

"But had luck seemed to be after me, for I had gone only a few feet until the horse I was riding stumbled and fell, with all three teams on the dead run. The horse and I were dragged about twenty feet. I got my feet out of the stirrups some way and was not scratched. The wheel driver came to my rescue and took the caisson on in while I gathered up the pieces of harness."

Twixt Love and Duty

FAMOUS MUSIC TEACHER DEAD

At One Time Gathered Five Thousand People along Banks of Big Conewago.

James Brown Harry, well known to the older residents of Gettysburg and other towns and cities of Southern Pennsylvania forty years ago, died recently at Laurium, Mich., at the home of his daughter, in the ninety-third year of his age. From 1865 to 1882 he and his family taught many classes in instrumental and vocal music in York, Wrightsville, Stewartstown, Shrewsbury, Spring Grove, Hanover, Gettysburg, New Oxford and other towns and villages in York and Adams Counties. His home was in Harrisburg, where he was a leader in the musical circles of that city.

Professor Harry was born in York in 1823, and became an instructor of music at the age of 18. In the fall of every year before the weather was too cool he held an annual picnic involving members of all his classes to meet along the Conewago Creek, near New Oxford. This picnic in the year 1888 had an attendance of five thousand pupils and their friends. These people came on horseback, tilburys, sulkeys, spring wagons, buggies, rock-aways, and all other vehicles in use at that time. A balloon ascension was one of the features of this day's outing on a balmy day in October.

Three thousand voices joined in a chorus which made the welkin ring on that occasion. This celebration was talked about all over York, Adams and Cumberland counties for many years afterwards. It is claimed to have been the most joyous reunion of musicians and their friends ever known to Southern Pennsylvania.

This noted musician traveled on horseback or in a buggy, and all the public highways were familiar to him from the Susquehanna to the South Mountains. He kept up his earnest work during the Civil War, and in June 28, 1863, was driving up the Wrightsville turnpike towards York, when he witnessed coming down the road, thirty-five hundred Confederate soldiers moving eastward. He quickly returned to Wrightsville and notified the people as well as the Union soldiers there of the approaching enemy.

Following up this duty Prof. Harry crossed the bridge at Wrightsville, and interviewed Colonel Frick, of Potsville, commanding a regiment of militia, and Major Haller of the Regular Army. Immediately afterward, the news he brought was telegraphed to Harrisburg to Major General Couch, then commanding the Union forces in the Department of the Susquehanna. General Couch ordered the Columbia bridge to be burned in order to prevent the enemy from crossing the river.

His daughter a few days ago brought the remains of the father to Mt. Holly Springs, the place of burial of his wife six years ago.

CUT OUT FRATS DURING WAR

Fraternity Houses and Clubs at Syracuse to Be Used as Barracks.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Fraternal life at Syracuse university will cease for the duration of the war. Frathouses and clubhouses will be converted into barracks for the members of the students' army training corps. It is expected the students will be too busily engaged in their studies to give attention to "rush-ing," "pledging" and "initiation."

ARENDSVILLE

Arendtsville—Owing to the frequent rains the wheat fields in this locality look excellent.

The body of Roy Derone, of Pittsburg, who died last week from influenza in Pittsburg, where he resided with his family, was brought here for burial. His wife, with her four children, is making her home with her mother, Mrs. Sadie Raffensperger, near this place. The wife and family of Wilson Raffensperger, who died here recently from the effects of influenza and pneumonia, will dispose of their household goods and make their home with Mrs. Raffensperger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Black, of Bendersville.

Mrs. David Nary has gone to Chambersburg to assist in taking care of her daughter, Mrs. Grace Evans, and family, who are ill with influenza.

Ralph A. Smelser, of Milwaukee, Wis., and Mrs. James Smelser, Edgar Smelser and Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Beecher, of Akona, were here to attend the funeral of Mrs. Henry A. Smelser, which was held last Saturday. She was the former's sister.

Our town still has about a dozen citizens housed up with the influenza. Among them are Messrs. Kiefer A. Charles E., and Harry C. Raffensperger; William H. Warren, George M. Klepper, Amos D. Sheely, Harry Beamer, Mrs. N. R. Beamer, Mrs. T. C. Hesson, Mrs. Mervin E. Stover, Mrs. George E. Hoffman, and her daughter, Helen.

Mrs. Sadie Fleck was a recent Hanover visitor.

John Bishop lost a horse by death recently.

Mrs. Carrie Baird, of Bedford County, who was called here by the death of her brother, John Longanecker, is spending several weeks with her niece, Annie Longanecker.

Annie and May Longanecker and Mrs. Carrie Baird spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Snyder, at McKnightstown.

Amos Longanecker and Amos Wolf are on the sick list.

Japanese Conjugal Etiquette

When American people judge the degree of affection between a Japanese husband and wife by their conduct to each other they make a great mistake. It would be as bad form for a man to express approval of his wife or children as it would be for him to praise any other part of himself, and every wife takes a pride in conducting herself according to the rigid rules of etiquette, which recognize dignity and humility as the virtues that reflect greatest glory on the home of which she is mistress.

BIGAMY CHARGE AGAINST WOMAN

Emmitsburg Defendant Said to Have Married again without Having Divorce.

Charged with being married without having obtained a divorce from her previous husband, Mrs. Frances Lillian Rodgers, about 38 years old, of Emmitsburg, was arrested Tuesday afternoon by Sheriff Charles H. Klipp and held in her own recognizance for a further hearing before Justice Alban M. Wood. Husband No. 1 is said to be William F. Rodgers, of Hagerstown.

Mrs. Rodgers and Charles J. Ordway were married in Frederick July 20, last by Rev. J. O. Wrightson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. After a short honeymoon Mr. Ordway became a soldier in Uncle Sam's Army and is now in France. Recently it became known that she had not been divorced from her first husband and a warrant was issued for her arrest. She stated that she had separated from her first husband because he refused to support her.

Some time ago the defendant said she received a letter from her first husband stating that he had obtained a divorce and that she was free to do as she pleased and he would do as he pleased. She said she supposed from the letter, which she has in her possession, that her first husband had secured a legal separation and that she married again. She claims that her first husband contributed nothing toward the support of herself or children and left her to shift for herself.

GET SALT FROM SEA WATER

Old Method of Obtaining Necessary of Life Is Still Practiced in Various Places.

The use of salt for seasoning and preserving foods is so ancient that the earliest written records refer to it says a writer in Popular Science Monthly. For many centuries practically all the salt used by the human race was procured by the evaporation of sea water.

This method of obtaining salt is still employed in many localities where the conditions are favorable. A flat stretch of sea coast and a hot and dry climate are necessary if salt is to be got from sea water. An ideal locality for this industry is the coast on the Bay of Cadiz, Spain.

The sea water is allowed to collect in shallow basins, barely above high-water mark. As the water evaporates the various salts contained in the sea water crystallize out and form a crust, which is removed and shoveled in small heaps. There the salts undergo the first stage of purification.

The edible salt is drained from the other salts, which constitute the greater part of the impurities. The edible salt crystallizes out first, while the other salts retain the water and form a concentrated brine which is allowed to run into ditches dug for that purpose.

The partly purified salt is then gathered into large heaps. Occasional rains wash out the more easily soluble impurities, and the hot sun dries the salt on the surface of the pile. Although it still contains about 15 per cent of impurities it is shipped in large quantities without further refining.

His Preference.

Alvina had always longed for a dog. One day the nurse announced that if he would pray for it, God might send him a brother or a sister very soon. That night the nurse overheard him saying his prayers. He ended with: "Dear God, I would like a brother or a sister, but if it's just the same to you, I'd lots rather have a dog."

LANDS FOR YANKS AFTER THE WAR

Will be Suitable for Soldiers who Come Back and Want Outdoor Life.

TO PREVENT CONGESTION

Several Purposes Served by this Plan of Senate. Still only Proposed Legislation.

The Committee on Public Lands of the Senate has unanimously reported in favor of a bill appropriating a million dollars to make surveys of farms for returning soldiers. In its report the committee says the proposed legislation is for the purpose of providing an opportunity to procure homes for those of our returning soldiers and sailors who may wish them upon their return from the war, as well as giving a like opportunity to thousands of workers in munition factories and other war industries who, at the conclusion of the war, will be out of employment. It is intended to promote as nothing else ever has the "back to the land" spirit.

It is recognized that one of the great evils of the times in our country is the over-crowding and congestion of people in the cities, many of whom are utterly unfitted for city life and not adapted to the avocations thereof. After the war this undesirable condition will be greatly intensified. Further, there will be hundreds of thousands of young men who will have returned from service in our Army and Navy who will be out of employment and for whom there will be no jobs or positions. In addition there will be thousands and thousands of men and women, now employed in munition factories and other war industries, which will have to close at the end of the war, who will be out of employment.

Many of them will have some means which they will have saved at their employment and with which they could locate upon and improve land and engage in agriculture, horticulture, or live stock raising. All of the above described classes of people will be needed on the land. The land will need them and they will need the land. It should be the object of the Government and it is the object of this proposed legislation to provide them with the opportunity of getting on the land. Furthermore, the undertaking which the proposed legislation contemplates, if embarked upon by the Government, would afford employment to thousands of men who will be out of employment at the termination of the war, when there will be a scarcity of employment in this country and when the idle will be clamoring for employment.

This bill is in line with proposed legislation suggested by the Secretary of the Interior, and the committee believes it of great importance. The committee further believes that it should be attended to in ample time and that no time should be lost in doing so. The war may end in another year, and if this scheme is to be embarked upon at all no time should be lost in doing so. The committee believes the proposed legislation and the undertaking contemplated thereby to be of great and vital importance to the country and a great and valuable economic program.

RUSH RAT PROOFING FIGHT

Woman's Committee of Council of Defense Is Playing Part of Piped Piper.

Washington.—Playing the part of the Piped Piper in a national campaign for the extermination of rats and mice, the department of home economics of the woman's committee of the council of defense is co-operating with the plans inaugurated by the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture in its effort to combat the national indifference on a subject which bears an intimate relation to the general field of conservation. "Rat proofing" campaigns have been carried on successfully in certain places in Europe, notably in Denmark, and have been tried out in this country. That they are urgently needed is manifest in the fact that $200,000,000 worth of foodstuffs are destroyed yearly by rats and mice.

WOMEN FILL BRITONS' JOBS

1,422,000 Are Employed in British Industries on Work Formerly Done by Men.

Washington.—Thirty-six per cent of the employees of the government of Great Britain, outside the munition factories, in January, 1918, were women, according to an announcement by the department of labor. It is estimated that in all lines of work 1,422,000 women have stepped in to fill the depleted ranks of industry, and nearly three-quarters of this number work for the government.

Libel on Quartermasters.

An army padre tells this story: "There was once a quartermaster who went to heaven. And he got a big job at once—because there were no other quartermasters there."

Get Out of the Rut Occasionally. There is sometimes no harm, and often a bucketful of joy, in just being real foolish for a spell. And many a time it loosens up the strings of the heart to be extravagant, even, like the country boy at the circus who said: "I've got 15 cents, and I'm going to spend it all on peanuts, and I don't give a darn who knows it, nuther."

HOW TO FIGHT Spanish Influenza
By Dr. L. W. Bowers.

Avoid crowds, coughs and cowers, but fear neither germs nor Germans! Keep the system in good order, take plenty of exercise in the fresh air and practice cleanliness. Remember a clean mouth, a clean skin, and clean bowels are a protecting armor against disease. To keep the liver and bowels regular and to carry away the poisons within, it is best to take a vegetable pill every other day, made up of Hay-suckle, aloes, jalap, and sugar-coated, to be had at most drug stores, known as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. If there is a sudden onset of what appears like a hard cold, one should go to bed, wrap warm, take a hot mustard foot-bath and drink copiously of hot lemonade. If pain develops in head or back, ask the druggist for Anker-pain-extractor tablets. These will flush the bladder and kidneys and carry off poisonous germs. To control the pains and aches take one Anker tablet every two hours, with frequent drinks of lemonade. The pneumonia appears in a most treacherous way, when the influenza victim is apparently recovering and anxious to leave his bed. In recovering from a bad attack of influenza or pneumonia the system should be built up with a good herbal tonic, such as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, made without alcohol from the roots and barks of American forest trees, or his Ironie. (Iron tonic) tablets, which can be obtained at most drug stores, or sent, 10c. to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial package.

THE OLD FELLOW'S "BIT."

Women have, nursed and women have kilt. Since ever the war began, Each fellow who's fit is doing his bit, As only a patriot can; But what is the bit that's officially fit For a loyal and elderly man?

He may practice economy, stint and save, And say an occasional prayer, He may polish his boots and learn to shave, And make his hair look like a rare antique, And he longs to be "over there."

He may practice economy, stint and save To lessen his laundry bill, To turn his wife an elderly care Of an amateur tailor's skill; But he longs, though he looks like a rare antique, To enter the ranks and drill.

Oh, it's rough on a loyal and elderly guy To twiddle his elderly thumbs, To turn his wife an elderly care Of a bear that readily comes, As, heads held high, the boys sweep by To the sound of the fife and drums. —Montreal Star.

WELL TO KEEP LOOK BEHIND

Aviators Have Revision of Adage Which We Have All Been Taught to Observe With Respect.

The old adage, "Look before you leap," may well be amended nowadays to read, "Look behind you while you fly," says Popular Science Monthly. In Europe the aviators are now as a rule equipped with "back-sight" mirrors on their airplanes so that they can observe not only the approach of any machines that may close in upon them from behind, but also keep an eye on the passenger or aviator pupil seated behind them. It is frequently only a narrow margin that saves an aviator from a collision with an airplane approaching from the rear when he is flying at high speed, and on several occasions it may be desirable for him to observe what his companion is doing in the rear of the cockpit. Such a mirror serves both purposes.

If all aircraft from the beginning had been equipped with these "back-sight" mirrors any number of fatal accidents that have occurred might have been prevented.

Why She Writes.

All young folks love the delightful stories written by Mrs. Gene Stratton-Porter, and when asked why she chose writing as a profession, she said: "For many reasons I came in time to believe that there might be a life work for one woman in leading other women back to the forest; on account of my inclinations, education and rearing, I felt, in a degree, equipped to be their Moses." Her first book, "The Song of the Cardinal," was inspired by the broken, bleeding body of one of those flaming birds which she found on the highway, the victim of a bullet. That she has opened the way into forest and swamp for many is a fact testified to by her large public of readers. Her charming rustic "Lumberland Cabin," near Rome, Ind., is situated at the head of Indiana's swamp region. Here she keeps house, lives another life among the wild things, and writes all about them.

Had His Good Points.

"Wherever did you get that dreadful black eye, Mrs. H.?" asked the district visitor, as she seated herself on the extreme edge of the least shabby chair in the room.

"It were the result of a trifling altercation with my husband, mum," replied the lady of the house.

"Dear, dear, dear!" cried the visitor, holding up her hands in horror, "how dreadful! What a bad, wicked man your husband must be!"

"Not at all, mum," retorted the other, with dignity. "Awkward is nasty, but 'e's a puffer gentleman at 'eart. I can assure you that after 'e'd give me this black eye 'e sat 'olding a cold fryin' pan to it for hours, 'e of a hower, a-tryin' to deduce the spellin'! A little hatterion like that goes a long way towards makin' married life 'appy mum, as I dessey you've fahnd yerself."

Heroes of Science.

We may not be disposed to spend much admiration on the American volunteer who consents to be inoculated with trench fever through the medium of the venin taken from the bodies of men, but these men assumed a risk more or less dangerous than that of the soldier who volunteers to go over the top in a patrol raid and it is hoped from the experience made with these volunteers that thousands of lives may be saved and an immeasurable amount of suffering prevented. Science has its heroes as well as has war. —Galveston Tribune.

So Dear of Him!

She was very pretty, but not especially endowed with brains. Her escort had explained that the man behind the catcher was the umpire.

"What does he do?" she asked. "He calls balls and strikes, and tells whether or not a man is safe at the plate."

"Oh, I see. He is there to warn the batsmen when he sees the pitcher is going to hit him with the ball. How surely thoughtful that is!"

CORN BINDER IS TIME SAVER

Machine Delivers Crop in Bundles Which Make It Considerably Easier to Handle.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) With a corn binder and three horses in corn that is standing well, three men, one to drive and two to shock, can harvest about twice as much as when cutting by hand. From seven to nine acres can be cut in a ten-hour day with a binder. The same three men could scarcely cover more than four acres in the same length of time when cutting by hand. With the binder they can cut and shock a 40-acre field of corn in a week or less, effecting a big saving in time, though perhaps none in expense. The binder delivers the corn in bundles, which makes it considerably easier to handle both in loading on wagons and at the ensilage cutter. If your acreage in corn is not large enough to justify an investment in a modern corn harvester, join with one or two of your neighbors and purchase one co-operatively. If this cannot be done, rent a binder—it will take the place of one hired man in cutting and shocking, or two in cutting corn for ensilage.

BEST PLACE TO STORE SEED

Dry, Well-Ventilated Room Is Preferable—Cellars Too Moist and Attics Too Hot.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Store seed in a dry, well-ventilated room. Cellars are too moist, attics usually are too hot, but a second-story room furnishes the ideal location. Seed can be protected against mice by storing in tin boxes or mouse-proof wooden boxes, or by suspending in cloth bags.

ROAD BUILDING

BUILDING OF GOOD HIGHWAYS

Federal Aid Road Act Exerts Important Influence on Legislation in Many States.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Federal aid road projects, unquestionably, are ready for construction in every state this year. Under the federal-aid road act of 1916 every state in the Union is now in a position to co-operate with the federal government in the building of highways.

Results of far-reaching importance and of even greater potential value than the appropriation of federal funds have already been accomplished by the federal act. Among the impressive results is the establishment outright of state highway departments in Delaware, South Carolina, Texas, Indiana and Nevada and the strengthening of other state highway departments so as to remove all question as to the 16 states which were not qualified to obtain federal co-operation at the time of the passage of the federal act.

In the past winter more construction of state highway legislation has been placed upon statute books than has ever been enacted in any similar period since the American republic was founded. The conditions laid down by the federal act as necessary to participate in its benefits operated powerfully to bring about the establishment and strengthening of state highway departments, the placing of a vast amount of road construction under skilled supervision, the systematizing and correlation of road work so as to provide the improvements most needed to meet traffic requirements, the creation of large funds for construction and maintenance and the establishment in many states of definite provisions insuring maintenance of highways from the date of their completion.

The working season of 1917 marked the opening of actual construction work under the terms of the post-road provision of the federal act, as necessary legislative and administrative work made it impracticable to get construction projects under way earlier. On January 31, 1918, the secretary of agriculture had approved 253 individual projects, aggregating 2,549.45 miles and calling for an expenditure from federal funds of $7,324,721.22, and from state and local funds of $9,917,143.70, making a total of $17,241,864.92. These projects represented applications from 44 states.

CULVERT OF BEST MATERIAL

Worse Than Folly to Use Boards to Take Care of Roads That Have Cost Much Money.

If the culverts are not built of good material they will have to be rebuilt in a few years, whatever the quality of the roads they are made to serve. Defective culverts vitiate one of the elementary principles of highway economics, and the interests of the taxpayers require that the annual cost of every part of the roads built for their use be reduced to the lowest possible figure consistent with efficiency. Manifestly, it would be worse than folly to build culverts of boards to take care of roads that have cost hundreds or thousands of dollars the mile, and it would be none the less foolish, or worse, to waste money in work of this sort with the use of bad material.

The theory that federal-aid road construction will not be sanctioned during the war has been exploded by the fact that the government has fixed the price of cement for this work.

American Girl Travels by Aeroplane, Handcar, Tank and Wheelbarrow to Sing for Soldiers

ACTRESSES who have their own cars or the use of elegant limousines may well bite their beautifully manicured nails with envy of Miss Kate Horisberg, who has been singing in Y. M. C. A. huts to entertain the American Expeditionary Force soldiers in France.

In one tour she was conveyed from one stand to another variously in

- A side-car,
- A limousine,
- An airplane,
- A tank,
- A camionette,
- A saw-mill carriage,
- A top of a pile of logs on a timber drag,
- On a railroad handcar, and finally
- In a wheelbarrow.

An army truck was included among her prospective conveyances, but it became mired and could not be used.

Before the United States entered the war, Miss Horisberg, a Baltimore girl, was a dramatic soprano doing church, concert and light opera singing. She toured forty weeks in "Every Woman," playing the role of Conscience. When the Y. M. C. A. took up the gigantic task of entertaining the American boys in addition to furnishing them with mental, spiritual and physical refreshment and recreation, she was enlisted by the Red Triangle's entertainment bureau for concert work in the war zone. She went over with the first quartette sent by the "Y," the Liberty Quartette, in December and has not signified her intention of quitting the work after more than half a year.

Miss Horisberg's singing tour took her to many American camps where she appeared on the stage at the Y. M. C. A. huts, the soldiers' theatre in the war zone. Overflow audiences greeted her, for the Yankee boys in France have learned to depend on the "Y" to keep them supplied with the best, clean, healthy entertainment of the sort that is a link with home. The young men in olive drab who are fighting abroad for democracy appreciate thoroughly the unselfish work which the men and women of the Red Triangle are doing for them; there, the majority of them at the risk of their lives. The remarkable series of rides on unusual vehicles to which the boys treated Miss Horisberg was a manifestation of their appreciation of the "Y" work as well as of their delight at chaperoning an American girl through the war zone.

Her novel tour started in a specimen of that quaint but useful type of army vehicle known popularly as a "bathub," the rajah convey of a motorcycle. Having swallowed enough dust while in this, she was transferred to a more prosaic camionette, in which she arrived at an aviators' camp. She sang her way into the affections of the flyers, who took her by airplane to her next stop. This concert was for the boys of the first American tank division in France and, not to be outdone by the aviators, the tankers insisted that they must "treat 'er rough" by a ride in a traveling fort to the next stand.

"It wasn't as comfortable as the airplane, but it was more thrilling," said the singer, when she arrived at the next "Y" hut. "The boys kept taking short cuts that seemed to necessitate going over the tops of young forests and across huge ditches and shell holes. If they wanted to amaze me, they succeeded. I held on desperately and hoped for the best."

The tank landed her in a division of engineers, who promptly trotted out the greatest luxury they possessed, offering it delicately but firmly, although it was not Saturday night. They isolated Miss Horisberg in a little shack beside the railroad and backed up a perfectly good American locomotive to which they attached a hose with its business end in the shack. And thus, "for the first time in France," Miss Horisberg had all the hot water she wanted for a bath and shower.

Thus refreshed, the singer went on by camionette—called a flivver in the United States, to a lumber mill, where she entertained the men of the night shift, who had missed all the shows which had visited that neck of the woods. So that there would be no competition with her voice, the machinery was stopped during the concert. To fatten her average as champion diversified rider of the world, the lumbermen had her mount a saw-carriage and ride through the process of sawing a log into one-and-a-half inch boards, thus making her an actress who not only trod but rode the boards.

On the following day she rode through the forest atop a mountain of logs dragged by a tractor, a bumpy journey to which the tank ride had hardened her. Then followed the hand-car ride to her next stop where, because the truck sent for her was mired, she finished her strange tour in a wheelbarrow.

Friday, the 13th

By MARY LUCAS

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

With a sigh of relief, pretty Ruth Pierce looked up as she finished casting off the sweater she had been knitting for the Red Cross. In another moment, however, her look of relief changed to one of trouble. She had just remembered that it was Friday, the 13th, her unlucky day. Ruth never liked to begin anything or complete anything on this day, so it was with an angry exclamation that she picked up the sweater and ran into the house.

She burst into the dining room, where her mother was busy setting the table for dinner, and exclaimed: "There! I just had to finish that sweater on Friday, the 13th. Something is surely going to happen now. I never knew it to fail." And Ruth burst out crying. Mrs. Pierce, knowing her daughter's superstition on this point, laughingly said: "Why, Ruthie, you are being a regular Calamity Jane. The sweater is finished, so what is the use of crying? Although Friday, the 13th, has always proved unlucky for you, there are always exceptions to every case you know."

With this Mrs. Pierce left the room. Ruth finally decided that her mother was right, and she dried her eyes. That afternoon the sweater was neatly folded and pinned, and pinned on it was a slip of paper, on which was written Ruth's name and address.

Ruth then started off for the Red Cross rooms with a guilty feeling for having finished a soldier's sweater on her unlucky day. She felt that something terrible would happen to the soldier whose fate it was to wear the sweater. With these thoughts running through her mind, Ruth came to her destination, and after delivering her bundles, she returned home.

Two months passed and Ruth had forgotten all about the sweater that had been completed on Friday, the 13th. Other things had occupied her mind.

One beautiful day in August Ruth was swinging back and forth in the hammock, knitting, as usual. She was very busy repeating "kalt two, puri two," so consequently she did not see a young man in khaki enter the gate and come toward her. She was therefore alarmed when someone asked her in a polite way if she were Miss Ruth Pierce. Ruth nodded in reply, and the stranger began to tell her that he was the soldier to receive her sweater. Ruth forgot all her shyness at this, and interrupted with "And has nothing terrible happened to you since you received it?" The young man looked puzzled as he said, "Why, no!"

Ruth, seeing his perplexity, hastened to explain her meaning. At the close of this explanation Arthur Whitney, for this was the young man's name, laughed aloud and said: "Why, I really think the sweater brought me good luck, for shortly after it arrived I was promoted to lieutenant."

Ruth then asked him if he would kindly tell her his name, which he readily did, and, considering themselves introduced, they talked on and on, heedless of the time. Mrs. Pierce, wondering where Ruth was, came out in the yard and was surprised to find her eagerly conversing with a strange young man. She approached them and received an introduction to Arthur, and told him how Ruth had worried about the sweater which he now proudly wore.

Arthur had obtained a long leave of absence, the greater part of which he spent at the Pierce home, and he and Ruth became very friendly. As the days went by their friendship ripened into love.

The day before Arthur's departure came at last, and it was on this day, when Ruth and he were seated in the hammock, that Arthur asked Ruth the old, old question, to which she shyly answered "yes."

That evening as Arthur was going out of the yard he turned and said: "Well, Friday, the 13th, certainly proved lucky for me," and Ruth replied in a happy voice, "And for me, too."

Worthy to Command Marines.

In that stretch of the Inferno along the Marne, known as Bois de Belleau, now sanctified by the French with the name of Bois de la Brigade de Marne, the Hun was fighting the fight of the treacherous, taking every odd of unfairness. He was strongly entrenched, his lines hidden behind masses of machine guns, protected by scathing shell fire, shielded by gas and shrapnel and high explosives.

But the marines went through that zone of death to victory. One of the great reasons for the advance of "the devil dogs" was Capt. Arthur H. Turner. Captain Turner was adjutant of a battalion. He took his place at the head of his troops and stayed there. When a chance to advance came he took the first step.

With every instant the shell fire increased, but Captain Turner of the marines wavered never for a moment, insuring the honor of his troops, and personally supervising the execution of every order. A citation has been given him for special bravery.

Opposite Conditions.

"How did Farmer Jones and his summer boarders happen to fall out?" "I think they fell out because the boarders found he was taking them in."

To Conserve Firewood.

In burning wood in a furnace built for coal the firebox should first be lined with firebrick or sheet iron, so as to check the draft. Otherwise, the wood will burn too rapidly.

VOTE FOR J. I. Hereter

For the Legislature

He will work for the best interests of the people of Adams County.

Patriotic Air Roused Her. A Quincy girl returned from a dance recently at about 3 a. m. and could not be awakened for work. The alarm clock had no effect, nor did repeated calls from members of the family. Her little brother tooted the reveille, but the girl was no soldier. Finally "The Star-Spangled Banner" was played, and to that the patriotic girl immediately responded.—Boston Globe.

Advice Soldiers Need Not Take. Sergeant, the French for which is sergeant, the Italian sergeant, comes from the medieval Latin word ser-viens, meaning a servant, a vassal, or a vassal soldier who seems to have acted as an orderly or striker. Tell this to your sergeant some warm day when he criticizes your appearance on parade in his coarse, unfeeling manner. It will soften him. It may even melt him.—New York Evening Post.
